Britain's biggest Toy Show with thousands of new and old toys is taking place this Saturday! During the show, you can discover rare toys from the 1950s and 60s, classics from the 70s, 80s and 90s, and the latest innovations. There are toy cars, action figures, including ones from Star Wars, and much more! Meet other people who also enjoy collecting toys. You can buy, sell, admire and exchange! Join us for a fun-filled day at the National Exhibition Centre in Birmingham, this Saturday, from 8 a.m. See you there!

I've always wondered how toy producers know which new toys will be a hit among children. Well, I've just found out how one company does it. It holds toy-testing sessions every three months. Groups of children, together with their parents, are invited to a place called the Play Lab. This is a huge playroom full of toys which have been recently designed. Experts watch the children play to see which toys they prefer. The Play Lab tests over 450 new toys every year and it's completely free!

Guess what! I found some old toy cars and action figures while I was cleaning the attic. They were my favourite toys when I was a child! I wonder how much I could get for them? They may be worth a fortune. Who knows? Do you know how I can find out? If you have any ideas, let me know. Maybe a collector would be interested in buying them, and I could put the cash towards my summer holiday this year. Please call me back whenever you can.

I've just found out about this amazing place where you can build your own toy car or lorry. Each part, from the wheels to the roof, has hundreds of options to choose from, so you can make something totally unique. When I heard about it, I immediately thought of your brother. He is a real car fan, and he also collects toys, doesn't he? Plus, he's turning 12 next month, so I thought going there would be the perfect present for him. The entrance tickets aren't cheap, but I'm sure he'll love it. What do you think?

The recent grand opening of a toy shop in our town last Saturday caused a lot of excitement. Hundreds of children and their parents lined up early, waiting impatiently for the doors to open. But before anyone could start shopping, a group of children got a special treat. They were allowed to run around the shop for three minutes, and pick out all the toys they wanted, even the most expensive ones, and they didn't have to pay for any of them. The reason was that they'd won a competition organized by the shop.

If you're tired of busy city life and are dreaming of a place where you can experience real peace and quiet on a daily basis, we've got some good news for you! An incredible opportunity is waiting for you on the lovely island of Foula, about 30 miles west of Scotland. Beverley McPherson, the only person who taught at the island's school, has retired, so her position is now open. With just four pupils, the school offers a very pleasant and stress-free environment. The lucky candidate will receive a good salary together with a cosy, rent-free two-bedroom house.

Woman: Hey, have you seen the news?
Man: No, what's happened?
Woman: My grandpa broke a world record in skydiving today!
Man: All by himself? How did he do it?
Woman: Actually, he did the jump as part of a group of eight people who are all over the age of 70. That is the largest group of that age to have ever skydived together! In fact, the other people in the group broke the previous record last year, but that was without my grandpa so this year the group was bigger. My grandpa didn't take part last year because he was climbing in the Alps then. I've just watched the record-breaking jump on the local news. It was absolutely amazing!
Man: Eight skydivers over 70! That's incredible! How are you going to celebrate his success?
Woman: I want to take him to his favourite pizza place! You could join us!
Man: I'm all for it! I can't wait to meet him!
Woman: OK, but grandpa's going to need a few days to recover, so maybe we can do it next week.
Man: That's a good idea!

If you're in China and you're climbing in one of the country's national parks, you might be able to visit a shop which is halfway up a cliff. It hangs 120 meters above the ground. The shop opened in April 2018 to serve adventure-seeking climbers who need a quick rest and some refreshment. It looks like a little wooden house. It's open seven days a week from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The shop is constructed of light materials, so it causes no damage to the rock.

Each customer receives a free bottle of water. As you might expect, the choice of products is limited as you can only buy snacks such as potato crisps or energy bars. However, while most people would probably expect things to be more expensive than usual, that's not actually the case. The prices are the same as in any other shop. If you don't have any money on you, you can pay using a mobile application. Unfortunately, credit and debit cards are not accepted.

The people who work at the shop are all professional climbers who get there every day using a long rope. Many climbers think that putting the shop on the side of the cliff was a brilliant idea and I couldn't agree with them more. It provides a useful service for climbers.

Girl: Our cat has been missing for two days now.
Boy: I think we should put up some notices in the neighbourhood.
Girl: Great idea! First, we need a heading.
Boy: OK, I'll write: "Missing cat".Then, I'll write his name: "Mr Sprinkles" and "Last seen on the 22nd of May in the morning".
Girl: No, it was the 21st! Two days ago, remember. He disappeared just after breakfast.
Boy: Right. "Last seen in front of"… shall I give the address of our house?
Girl: No. We should write: "on the corner of Silver Street and Park Avenue". That's where Mum saw him last, remember?
Boy: And now… the description. I'll write that Mr Sprinkles is "a large grey cat with a long fluffy tail".
Girl: Don't forget about the white spot on his ear.
Boy: Is it on the left or right one?
Girl: Left, of course.
Boy: Oh, yes, that's right. I'll also write that he's friendly. Some cats are aggressive when strangers want to touch them. People should know that Mr Sprinkles isn't like that.
Girl: Yes, he likes people but he gets scared when he hears loud noises. We need to write that down too.
Boy: OK. Done. Now, our telephone numbers.
Girl: We should also mention a reward. Maybe some money?
Boy: Well, we don't have much... Let's just put: "huge smiles" from us.
Girl: But huge smiles are not enough. Why don't we offer something else as well? Perhaps a bag of sweets?
Boy: I'm not sure. What about a big box of chocolates?
Girl: Perfect! I'll get a really big one. Now I'll choose a photo of Mr Sprinkles. Then you can print the notices out.
